Editorial

Dear Readers,

Journal of interdisciplinary Sciences (JIS) is now completing its eight years of publication journey. However, this year in September, we were hit by the heavy rainfall causing the consequences of excessive flooding, which apparently also flooded the JIS office destroying every document and equipment's. But we were determined to offer our continuous services to the authors and the readers around the world who depended on us for their publication which encouraged ourselves to meet the publication date of November 2nd, publishing its volume 8, issue 2.

In this Volume 8, issue 2, JIS is only publishing few papers from interdisciplinary sciences. We will now start working with the next volume for the year 2025 and we hope we can continue to serve the educational and scientific community.

We look for your support and expect to receive your submission.

Thank you
